Seen, Heard and Done Among Those Who Go, Come and Tarry—Women and Society, Here and Elsewhere.

THE NOMADS MET WITH MRS. BEARD.

The Nomads had a very deeply interesting meeting with Mrs. John Beard in her beautiful bayside home Monday afternoon.

The program was a rather weighty one, the fundamental subjects of the papers requiring profound research outside and above the ordinary trend of women's discussions.

Only two papers were read, one by the hostess Mrs. Beard on—"Magna Charta," and another by Mrs. L. J. Reeves on—"Parliament—The outgrowth of English love of liberty," and both ladies proved very able in their line, and their papers were made quite interesting.

Mrs. C. H. Dishman read a selection from Macaulay on—"Opening of Parliament."

The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. L. Simpson.

FOR MRS. PEPPER'S GUESTS.

Mr. W. R. Roberson gave a bay party to the life saving station Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Throver and Miss Mahon attractive guests of Mrs. B. R. Pepper on East Hill.

Besides the host and the honorees, those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Luske of Chicago, Miss Edith Luske, Miss May Burton, Miss Lillie and Mr. Frank Williams, Miss Ida Thaggard of Greenville, Ala., guest of Mrs. C. C. Goodman, and Miss Lucy Gerda.

THE DEADLY LACK OF ENTHUSIASM.

The only fault that the most exacting can find with the last carnival is the utter lack of enthusiasm "at home."

The carnival itself was magnificent beyond all expectation. The king, the queen and their attendants were practically ideal as to quality and quantity, the mystic pageant far exceeded all previous efforts, the visitors were abundantly in evidence and brimming with enthusiasm ready to be delighted with everything but local indifference, that like an iceberg surrounded them everywhere.

Even the few home people who tried to enter into the carnival spirit were soon frozen out by a deadly unresponsiveness that would chill the most ardent. And yet—enthusiasm was the one thing needed.

Anyone who saw that brilliant throng in the opera house awaiting the coronation, with inertia clouding the majority, and then marked the flash of rejuvenation when one jolly fellow in the southwest corner of the balcony "woke 'em up" for an instant, must realize what is needed. For a moment he had the house involuntarily with him. All smiled and—between you and me, reader—some folks actually laughed aloud, real home folks too. But, they looked so sorry and ashamed for their levity that even his brave spirit was checked, and though the live people present encouraged a repetition, he subsided.

Later a few of the fun loving young men endeavored to infuse some jollity into the solemn occasion by throwing paper ribbons from the balcony to the stage but the black looks from some of the women on whom the paper fell and the vicious manner with which others jerked the poor paper from their heads and snapped it apart, soon settled the rash youths, knocked the last breath out of the jolly carnival spirit, and dullness again resumed its tiresome sway.

There is plenty of fun and jollity under the cloud of indifference darkening the local sky and the best thing the lovers of decent fun can do for their home city is to combine forces and break the ice next opportunity.

Break it so effectually that every such magnificent production as any one feature of the mystic parade, from the "red fire" wagon to the back load of following maskers, shall be received along the line with shouts of appreciative enthusiasm; so effectually that people whose social position is so shaky they are afraid to laugh aloud until "so and so" does, will be lost to sight and memory though they frown and frown and frown.

Let 'em frown. Let joy be unconfined when it is joy's time. There is a time for merriment even in Pensacola.

And—there is too a time to greet Priscus and his queen, though it is apparently not generally known. By next "Mardi" it should be published within the municipality that "loyal subjects" includes everybody in the opera house when the invitation is proclaimed. Some of the "loyal" do not recognize their privileges and the strangers wait for the home folks to head a general march to the throne.

It is "Home, Sweet Home" that needs cultivating and the fun lovers can do it if they'll form a trust for home culture.

ALDERMAN J. M. MULDON CONGRATULATES JOURNAL

HE ALSO SCORES THE CITY OFFICIALS WHO WERE INSTRUMENTAL IN "SUSPENDING" THE CITY LICENSE LAWS—WILL LOOK FOR SETTLEMENT FROM TAX COLLECTOR.

The following letter from Chairman J. M. Muldon, of the city council's finance committee, makes very interesting reading and needs no explanation:

Alderman Muldon's Letter, Pensacola, Fla., March 8, 1905. Mr. Frank L. Mayes, Editor Pensacola Journal, Pensacola, Fla.:

Dear Sir—I was astonished to note from the article in your paper this morning that a petition had been circulated to suspend the operation of the city's license tax law, and had received the signatures of half of the members of the City Council.

In the same article I see that the mayor has written to the tax collector of the city giving him permission to the tax collector for the issuance of a license to the Carnival Company, operated by Mr. Berger at a less rate than is provided for by the law of this city.

I am under the impression that these matters come more directly under the control of the finance committee of the City Council, and I am glad to see that no member of the finance committee has signed the petition. In any event I cannot see that the city tax collector has a right to issue a license under any terms except as provided for in the ordinance regulating the license tax of this city, and as a member of the City Council, I shall certainly insist, in so far as I can, that the city tax collector make settlement with the city according to the law, and regardless of the amount collected from the parties to whom the license was issued.

I wish to take this occasion to congratulate you upon the stand which you have taken in the matter in your paper. I remain Very truly yours, J. M. MULDON.

ALDERMAN CAHN MAKES STATEMENT

Editor Pensacola Journal:

In reference to the signing of a petition by certain members of the city council, asking that the city license provisions be modified for the benefit of the shows now doing business on West Garden street, I desire to say:

The petition was not presented to me, and had it been presented to me, I would have refused to sign it, as I think such concessions do not come within the law, and I do not think a license granted in this way is legal.

SOL CAHN.
